Respecting Professional Boundaries focuses on that thin line between a professional therapeutic relationship and over-involvement. In this course, you will explore the issues surrounding the professional therapeutic relationship and the responsibility of the nurse to establish and maintain appropriate boundaries during that relationship. The content provides a basic understanding of professional boundaries, abuse of the therapeutic relationship and its consequences, highlights warning signs of boundary violations, and provides strategies for preventing and correcting boundary violations.

Course Authors

The course content is based on the work of the NCSBN Task Force on Professional Boundaries and Sexual Misconduct: Jean Stevens, RN, MBA, Chair; Judith Ryan, RN, PhD, CRNP; Neysa Somple Gaskins, RN, JD; Betty Ann Taylor, RN, MSN; Vickie Sheets, RN, JD, Staff.
